

Winter Retrospect

White clouds hang,
finessed in grey and white,
On an endless canvas of powder blue.
Polar air invades the temperate zone and we shiver tho' clad from head to toe.
An unexpected gift from northern lands
Has entered our domain.
As sun breaks through to light the day
We think of Spring to come,
Though not yet tired of winter reflection.

David Sharpe